

Donate Blood in Honor of Russell Drachenberg

Russell was diagnosed having a Factor VIII Inhibitor blood clotting disorder and a large right thigh hematoma in early July of 2022. He was given chemotherapy to improve the coagulative ability of his blood. While in the hospital, he required more than 20 blood transfusions to keep him alive while hematologists worked to find a cure for his rare blood disorder. When they concluded that the Factor VIII clotting was at an acceptable level, he was transferred to an Acute Care Rehab facility to regain his strength and muscle mass which was lost during his lengthy hospitalization. Russ is appreciative for all who donated blood in the past for his benefit and hopes that this drive will benefit many others in the future.
